Herb Frazier & Joseph McGill, Jr.

*Herb Frazier is a Charleston, South Carolina-based writer. He's a senior editor for the Charleston City Paper, and the former marketing director at Magnolia Plantation and Gardens in Charleston. Before he joined Magnolia, Frazier edited and reported for five daily newspapers in the South, including his hometown paper, The Post and Courier. Herb's latest book, Sleeping with the Ancestors: How I Followed the Footprints of Slavery, is a collaboration with Joseph McGill, founder of the Slave Dwelling Project. Herb's forthcoming book, Crossing the Sea on a Sacred Song, tells the story of an African funeral song that links a Georgia family with a woman in Sierra Leone.*

*Mr. Joseph McGill, Jr., is the founder of the Slave Dwelling Project and a former history consultant for Magnolia Plantation in Charleston, S.C. By arranging for people to sleep in extant slave dwellings, the Slave Dwelling Project has brought much needed attention to these often-neglected structures that are vitally important to the American built environment. Mr. McGill has conducted over 250 overnights in approximately 150 different sites in 25 states and the District of Columbia. He has interacted with the descendants of both the enslaved communities and of the enslavers associated with antebellum historic sites. Mr. McGill is co-author of the book: *'Sleeping with the Ancestors: How I Followed the Footprints of Slavery.'
